

LIFE IS TOO SHORT
Ephesians 4:30-5:2
Philippians 2:5-8
II Peter 1:5-9
Baccalaureate 2000
E. LeBron Fairbanks

Introduction

- A. A colleague said to me recently, “Life is too short not to live together kindly, compassionately, and forgivingly.”
- B. I was immediately reminded of the last verse of Ephesians 4, “Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ God forgave you.”
- C. As I reflected on the scriptural passage and the words of my friend, I said to myself, “I don’t want to live my life as a ‘bitter’ man...and I don’t want my students, colleagues, and friends to live their lives with ‘bitterness, rage, and anger...slander...and malice.’” (Ephesians 4:31)
- D. My parting words to each member of the MVNC class of 2000: Make it your prayer, intention, commitment—your resolve—to be known as a kind, compassionate, and forgiving person. Life is too short to live otherwise!
- E. I want to leave you with three legacy-building steps that I believe will lead us on our journey toward this Christlike way of living kindly, compassionately, and forgivingly. They are deceptively simple. These steps are:
 - #1 Speak carefully.
 - #2 Care deeply.
 - #3 Forgive quickly.

Let me explain!

I. Step #1: Speak Carefully (Ephesians 4:30a)

- A. Our words to others can bless or burn.
1. The words we speak, in New Testament perspective, are to communicate grace to those who hear (4:29).
 2. The reality is that we live in an unkind, uncompassionate, and unforgiving world.
 3. Increasingly in the work place, and sometimes in the home...
 - a. abuse, slander, and misunderstanding are the norms, rather than the exception.
 - b. And the differences we experience because of our background, temperament, social status, or religious faith,
 - 1) often divide us rather than provide a bridge for greater understanding and perspective.
 - 2) It even happens on a Christian college campus.
- B. In these real-life encounters, our conversation should be sacramental.
1. For Paul, our words should communicate grace. They should...
 - a. Focus on others in conversation, not self;
 - b. Focus on encouragement, not discouragement;
 - c. Focus on building up, not tearing down;
 - d. Focus on supporting, not undermining;
 - e. Focus on healing, not hurting;
 - f. Focus on caring, not indifference.
 2. Dialogue, for Paul, was a sacrament.
 - Through our words, God's very grace should flow.

- Jesus said, “Out of our mouth comes the overflow of the heart.”
3. Words we use can bless others or “burn” others (and we are so careless at times with our words).
 4. Words that bless come from attitudes of the heart, not techniques of the head. The attitudes of our hearts should be:
 - I love you.
 - I care for you.
 - I need you.
 - I respect you.
 - I serve you.
 5. These attitudes, when reflected to others will make a difference in their lives.
 - a. People are so used to words that
 - tear down
 - discourage
 - undermine
 - hurt
 - are indifferent
 - and focus on one’s self.
 - b. For these reasons, words that minister grace – words that become channels of God’s grace -- will have a powerful impact and make a difference.

Step #1: Speak carefully. Our words to others can bless or burn.

II. Step #2: Care Deeply.

A. Our care for others can be intimate or distant.

1. What do we mean by “care”?

- a. The word “care” finds its root in the Celtic term “kara,” which means lament.
 - b. The basic meaning of care is “to grieve, to experience sorrow, to cry out with.”
 - c. I am struck by the background of the word “care” because we tend to look at caring of the strong toward the weak, of the powerful toward the powerless, of the “haves” toward the “have-nots.”
2. I am coming to understand that biblical compassion is not a skill which we acquire. Rather, it is a quality of the human heart which must be revealed.
- B. The late Henri Nouwen often stated that you cannot get a Ph.D. in caring.
1. Nouwen helped me to realize that when we see the other person and discover in that person gentleness, tenderness, and other beautiful gifts which he or she is not able to see, then our compassionate heart is revealed!
 2. What a profound thought! Our compassionate heart is revealed as we enable others to see what they have not , nor cannot, see in themselves!
 - a. We are talking about caring relationships with people.
 - 1) To be compassionate is not, first of all, something we do for others, but rather it is discovering with others their divinely given resources and inner qualities.
 - 2) It is a way of being present with others and standing with them in their times of need.

- d. We are truly present, even in the quietness.
 - e. And we pray honestly, openly, and confidently!
- E. Nouwen introduced me to the phenomenal concept of voluntary displacement in his book entitled Compassion and in other books and numerous articles on the subject.
1. Voluntary displacement means that for the sake of others, we willingly go to places we'd rather not go.
 - a. We move out of our comfort zones voluntarily.
 - b. and “displace” ourselves outside the familiar to us.
 - c. Why?
 - 1) A need exists;
 - 2) A response from within is required;
 - 3) An inward call from God is felt;
 - 4) We go, because of who we are.
 2. Voluntary displacement can take us...
 - a. to the inner city,
 - b. or around the world.
 - 1) This calling can be for a brief time,
 - 2) or for a lifetime.
 3. Let me illustrate from Nouwen's life how caring deeply for others often interrupts our routines of life.

It really was not difficult for Nouwen to leave his teaching positions at Notre Dame, Harvard and Yale divinity schools to accept an invitation to spend the final ten years of his life living and working as priest to the L'Arche Community for the severely mentally handicapped in Toronto. His specific daily responsibility was to care for Adam. It took Nouwen two hours each day to prepare Adam for breakfast. Yet Nouwen wrote on several occasions, "I learned far more from Adam than he ever learned from me."

5. Again, I am coming to see that God wants us to be with others...not to prove that we are valuable to them.

Step #2: Care deeply. Our care for others can be intimate or distant.

III. Step #3: Forgive Quickly.

- A. Our forgiveness of others can be immediate or delayed.
- B. The words of Jesus on the cross regarding forgiveness are profound. "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."
 1. His words did not change the situation.
 2. His words did not change the people involved.
 3. His words did not reduce the pain He felt.
 4. His words did not change things externally.
- C. His words of forgiveness, on the cross, changed everything internally.
 1. He was not going to let what others said and did to him create within himself bitterness, resentment, and anger within Him.
 2. He was not going to permit what others said and did to him to create a break in the relationship with God the Father.

- a. It simply was not worth it!
 - b. He was not going to give others that much control over His life.
3. It was as if He was saying, “Do what you have to do, say what you have to say, but I will not permit these words and deeds done to me and said against me to create a break in the relationship with the Father. It’s just not worth it!”
- D. The issue is not so much the response from others to our efforts to be kind, compassionate, and forgiving...
1. Our efforts may not always be received in the spirit they were given.
 2. But withholding forgiveness permits Satan to gain a foothold in our lives.
 - a. Bitterness develops.
 - b. Anger increases.
 - c. Resentment manifests itself.
 - d. And Satan laughs.
 3. Our calling is to be Christ-like even in the uncomfortable situations in which we sometimes find ourselves.
 - a. God will provide blessing and joy within us, regardless of the apparent rejection sometimes from the other persons involved.
 - b. Remember...as believers, we forgive, not to change people, but because God in Christ forgave us. And we were so undeserving.
- E. Sometimes we have been hurt so deeply that we can’t reach out with integrity, in forgiveness to others.
1. “Father...forgive them...” The words of Jesus were words of a prayer!

2. And Paul reminds us that God's grace is sufficient for us, and His power is made perfect in our weakness.
3. I received an email recently from a person who left campus some time ago. From this person's perspective, things were done and not done that continued to bother the individual. Accusations were made. I hurt for the individual, for the College, and personally. After several days, I responded, not trying to answer each point made. Instead, I asked for forgiveness. Obviously, the school, collectively and individually, had not been for the individual what the person needed from us. I had a choice. I could "brew" over the stinging email; or genuinely seek forgiveness, asking God and the person to teach me through this situation.

Conclusion

- A. Let me summarize these legacy-building steps to living a Christlike life of kindness, compassion, and forgiveness:
 - Jesus spoke words of grace to others. Therefore, we are to speak carefully.
 - Jesus humbled Himself and did for us on the cross what we could not do for ourselves. Therefore, we also are to care deeply.
 - Jesus forgave us while we yet sinners. Therefore, we are to forgive quickly.
- B. I say to you again: "Life is too short not to live together kindly, compassionately, and forgivingly."
 - As we speak carefully, care deeply, and forgive immediately, Peter reminds us, our Christian life will be effective and productive.

- C. Before you leave campus this weekend, if you feel resentment, bitterness, or anger towards a student, a faculty or staff member, an administrator, a family member who may be here to celebrate with you, or if you know a person on campus who is hurting and grieving intensely,
1. Locate the person.
 2. Ask God to strengthen you.
 3. Talk to the individual. Remember our words can be vehicles of grace!
 4. Ask him or her for forgiveness for your wrong spirit, or express to the person deep care and genuine compassion.
 5. Listen to the other person.
 6. Pray together, if possible, before you separate.
- D. This kind of Christlike living will make a difference—tonight and throughout your life—
1. in the home,
 2. in the community,
 3. in the workplace,
 4. in the lives of others, and
 5. within yourselves.
- E. Remember, “Life is too short not to live together kindly, compassionately, and forgivingly.”
- F. Reflect on these words as the Collegians sing a song on forgiving and forgetting.